Year Theme:

And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing. 1Cor 13: 2, KJV.

* Each year a book is chosen and given to all church school personnel and reviewed at our annual retreat by the local superintendents. The book "PUSH: Pray Until Something Happens were chosen last year for reading and this year's review.

What were the goals for the last conference year?

To establish a oneness relationship with the Lexington district. We are as one, and should come together and create an environment where we work to make the conference church school the best that it can be. However, my efforts were not fruitful.

What was accomplished on the annual conference level?

Encouraging new workers serving in the local church school to be certified. This will enhance their skills to be church school leaders. Teaching is one of the most critical tools in the growth of our local church schools. Don't think that you know it all, we all can learn new and different techniques to use, and also, I serves as a presenter and sis. Robbie Brice, assumed the position as assistant church school superintendent.

Do you have your goals for this coming year? If so, please list.

To remain encourage that both districts come together as one, or, if it's the leadership desire to function separate, so be it. The merger have taken place, therefore, hopefully, we can come together and work as one in the participation and attendance of our annual days celebration. It appears that churches are planning other activities, when the District/Conference dates are well known in advance. Although it get tiresome and the success does not seem to come in a timely manner, that is satisfactorily to us. We must continue to work and pray daily, in God's due time, the result of our labor will be rewarded.

*However, funds are needed to insure that the same levels of accomplishments are maintained as previously done in the Louisville District. The church school goals and mission can not be accomplished with little or no funding. Self funding should not be an option in the future, there has to be some means of financial support.
